WILL BE A PRIMARY.

Democratic State Committee Called to Meet on June 12th.

The Democratic State Executive Committee will meet at the Old Inn, Louisville, on Tuesday, June 12, next, at 2 o'clock p. m., for the purpose of determining the "time, mode and place" of nominating candidates for State offices, and also to consider and determine the propriety of fixing a time and mode of nominating a Democratic candidate for United States Senator to be voted for by the party members in the next General Assembly. The call for such a meeting was issued late Saturday by Chairman Lewis McQuown, of the Democratic State Central and Executive Committees.

The members of the State Executive Committee are: Chairman Lewis McQuown, Judge John M. Lassing, of Boone county, for the State-at-large; Mott Ayres, Fulton; R. B. Bradley, Hopkins; G. W. Roark, of Simpson; C. C. Spalding, Biscoe Hindman, of Jefferson; A. B. Rouse, of Boone; W. A. Lee, of Owen, J. Norton Fitch, of Jessamine; W. A. Young, of Rowan; Finley Fogg, of Morgan, and J. F. Hawn, of Knox county.

It will be proposed before the committee at the meeting to be held that a primary election be called for the day of the November election, 1906, to nominate not only the candidates for the various State offices, but a Democrat to be voted for in January, 1908, to succeed Senator James B. McCreary in the United States Senate. The matter of holding the primary election at that time, and also of selecting a nominee for United States Senator, has been agitated for some time, and it is said that a poll of the Executive Committee members shows that such a call will certainly be made.

The official call by Chairman McQuown is in full as follows: "The Democratic State Executive Committee of Kentucky is hereby called to meet at The Old Inn, in the city of Louisville, on Tuesday, June 12, 1906, at 2 o'clock p. m., for the purpose of determining the time, mode and place of nominating Democratic candidates for State offices; and in view of the general expression by members of the party, through the press and in convention, the committee is also called upon to consider and determine the propriety of fixing a time and mode of nominating a Democratic candidate for United States Senator, to be voted for by the next General Assembly of Kentucky.

"Witness my hand, as chairman of said committee, this June 2, 1906.
"LEWIS McQUOWN,
Chairman Democratic State Executive Committee.
"PERCY HALY, Secretary."

Deserved Compliment.

A. J. Winters & Co., of this city, just received an order for a 290 piece mahogany chest of silver to be delivered in Baltimore, Md., by June 10th. This is quite a compliment to this firm who are enterprising and up-to-date. They will be there with the goods as the parties gave Mr. Winters cart blank to select pattern and pieces and everybody knows it will be all right.

Mules and Hogs.

Thos. McClintock & Sons, of Millersburg, shipped last week from Hutchison, one load of hogs, averaging 215 pounds, that cost them $6 per hundred. They shipped four loads from Millersburg, weighing from 200 to 270, which they paid from 5 to 6 cents per pound for. They also sold to the Middlesboro Coal and Coke Co. two mules for $400 and two to Henry Fuhman, of this city, for $325.

Voting Booth Moved.

The voting booth of Clintonville precinct No. 2, was ordered moved yesterday, from the farm recently sold by Mr. Newton Mitchell, on the Clintonville pike, to the farm of Mr. I. D. Thompson on the same pike.

OFFICERS ELECTED.

Interurban From Paris to Mt. Sterling Assured.

Under the articles of incorporation of the Paris, North Middletown and Mt. Sterling Interurban Railway the stockholders met in Paris Saturday and elected a Board of Directors. The meeting was held in the law office of McMillan & Talbott. The Directors elected were as follows: John T. Collins and W. A. Thomason, of North Middletown; Judge H. Clay McKee and J. M. Bigstaff, of Mt. Sterling, and R. J. Neely, Robt. C. Talbott and Henry A. Power, of Paris.

The Board afterwards elected the following officers: John T. Collins, President; Robert C. Talbott, Vice-President; Henry A. Power, Treasurer; and H. Clay McKee, Secretary.

We are reliably informed that the prospects for the early construction of this road are assured; that $6,500 of the capital stock had been paid in; that the road had been surveyed and that an additional survey would be made at an early date. In explaining the necessity for the additional survey it was stated that the present route contained several steep grades that when removed would make the construction of the road much easier and would enable the company to finance the project with much less difficulty. The people of the section of Bourbon and Montgomery counties through which the road will run under the new survey have made liberal propositions as to right of way and stock in the company. President Talbott was empowered to select a committee of directors to secure the right of way at the earliest possible moment.

HOME-COMING.

Home-Coming Week will be an event that will add new renown and glory to the grand old Commonwealth of Kentucky. No undertaking, however great its magnitude in the way of entertainment, is too much for the generous and hospitable Kentuckians. True to that impulse we first suggested through the columns of the News the idea of Home-Coming. Like a rolling snow ball it grew in size and was soon being agitated by the press throughout the state and finally developed into the splendid movement that will have its culmination at Louisville the week of June 13th and later in all the counties. We have repeatedly urged that the grand old county of Bourbon should not let this opportunity go by. More than nine hundred ex-Bourbons have signified their intention of being present most of whom will, after the festivities close at Louisville, come to Paris and Bourbon county to renew old acquaintances, to see the old home place that perhaps more than a half century ago gave them birth, to visit the little school house where in boyhood days they met one with another in study and recreation, to visit the old family buying ground where relatives and kindred are sleeping that eternal sleep that knows no awakening. Are we going to welcome them with that proverbial hospitality that has been and is to-day the pride of every citizen of the county? Are we going to open our home and our hearts as individuals and say, welcome, thrice welcome? Or shall we by concerted and united effort devise some plan by which these people, former citizens of our beautiful bluegrass county, can be entertained in a manner befitting the occasion, and in a way that will make each feel that he or she is welcome to the old Kentucky home?

Nothing has been done looking to concerted action, no organization of willing hands and herats has been announced to bring the matter before the people to secure proper accommodation, and to formulate a program by which their stay will be made pleasant and agreeable.

One of our leading citizens and business men, Mr. John Davis, called up a few days ago to know what had been done, and suggested that he would contribute $20 to make home coming week one long to be remembered by those who will visit the home of their childhood days. Who else will contribute? It should be remembered that nearly all former citizens of the county who will visit their old home are now fast reaching if they have not already, past three score and ten, and come hundreds and perhaps thousands of miles for one more visit to the old Kentucky home. Neighboring counties, in fact nearly every county in the state are making preparations to entertain their former citizens upon a large scale. What are the good citizens of this county doing to make the occasion one here of interest and pleasure to those who come?

Will not some one take the initiative and save the proud old county of Bourbon the humiliation of neglecting to properly entertain her former citizens. Are we going to permit these good people to return to their native home with no bureau of information to guide them, no reception committee to meet them? Our only hope seems to be with the good women of the city and county. Should they take the matter up Bourbon can justly feel proud of Home Coming week. There are people who are inclined to believe that the country is going to the dogs. They are influenced in such belief by the disclosures of political corruption, commercial graft, business rottenness, social scandal, and so on. They appear never to have taken into account the fact that the exception to the rule is always given greater prominence. If they would but regard the matter in this light they would be disabused of many of the opinions they now hold. But over and above this fact is the greater one—there has never been, in the history of this country, a laying bare of evils of any kind, but that a higher plane has been sought and benefits have accrued.

THE OTHER VIEW.

It was but a generation ago that a New York politician declared "The people might be damned. What are they going to do about it?" It was but 25 years ago that a king of finance was halted in schemes designed to lay tribute on the entire internal commerce of this country.

It was less than 20 years ago that a panic was brought on by causes which will never be able again to create such a disturbance. For two decades there have not been social scandals like those which shocked New York city to its very foundations, resulting as they did in sensational suicides and practical expulsion from this country. A higher plain was then sought in the commercial, business and social life of the country, and has in the main been maintained; and there is no doubt whatever that the disclosures of the last five years, exceptions though they be, will result in the seeking of a still higher plane, and its maintenance by a larger majority of the people.

THE STRENUOUS LIFE.

President Roosevelt is known to enjoy a strenuous life, and there is no doubt he is getting his fill of it. He is constantly in hot water with some one and often has to crawl out of tight places by declaring that his opponent has lied—a deliberate and unqualified liar, is his favorite expression. When he replied to the claim of Judge Parker, just before the national election, that the corporations were furnishing campaign funds to the Republican committee, President Roosevelt declared it was a "monstrous falsehood," and that if it "were true, then Mr. Coretlyou and myself are two of the most infamous men in the country." The exposures in the life insurance investigations and other evidence show that Judge Parker told the truth and there is very strong evidence to show that Mr. Roosevelt knew it was the truth when he, for personal and partisan purposes, said it was a "monstrous falsehood." In spite of the plain evidence Mr. Roosevelt has never apologized to Judge Parker, nor has he caused restitution to be made to the funds that should have been sacred to the widows and orphans of policy holders which was plundered to aid in his election.

Couldn't Sit Down.

"I beg you pardon, but I'm in trouble," said a man who was well dressed and plainly excited, to Sergeant Temperly at No. 3 Police Station, Armourdale, according to the Kansas City Journal. "Can you help me out?"

"I'll do my best," answered the obliging Sergeant. "Sit down and tell me about it."

"No, I simply can't sit down," said the man, nervously.

"Must be serious to effect you like that," said the Sergeant. "What is it?"

"You see, it is this way," said the man. "I came in on an early train from the West, and as I got up late, when the train was but a few minutes from the Union Depot, I dressed in all haste. I had some business to attend to in Armourdale right away, and I paid my street car fare from some change I had in my overcoat pocket. But when I was standing at the corner of Fifth and Kansas a moment ago for the first time unbuttoned my overcoat and looked inside and found—"

"That you had been robbed while on the train?" broke in the Sergeant, interestedly.

"No," said the man, "found that I had put my trousers on backward and I can't sit down. What I want is a private place to change 'em."

He got it.

A complication of female troubles, with catarrh of the stomach and bowels, had reduced Mrs. Thos. A. Guaranteed cure for torpid liver, kidney disease, biliousness, jaundice, chills and fever, general debility, nervousness and blood poisoning. Best tonic made. Price 50 cents at Oberdorfer's drug store. Try it.

A FOOLISH PLAN

It's a joy to eat—I welcome my dinner hour: Because I rout indigestion with August Flower!

Constipation is the result of indigestion, biliousness, flatulency, loss of appetite, self-poisoning, anemia, emaciation, uric acid, neuralgia in various parts of the system, catarrhal inflammation of the intestinal canal and numerous other ailments that rob life of its pleasures if they do not finally rob you of life itself.

"I'm bound in the bowels," is a common expression of people who look miserable and are miserable—yet who persist in "letting nature take its course."

What a foolish plan, when nature could be aided by the use of Green's August Flower, which is nature's own remedy for constipation and all stomach ills.

August Flower gives new life to the liver and insures healthy stools.

Engagement Rings.

An engagement ring should never be regarded as a woman's property till the marriage service has been read. There may be urgent reasons for breaking engagements to marry, and the ring should then be returned to the giver. Should he ask that it be kept as a pledge of friendship, it can be done without offering good taste, very much; but such a thing rarely happens. The ring is a money investment to a young man; and, besides there are other girls in the world, says an exchange. Usually men have the good sense to make no fuss over a woman's greediness, but an occasional man wants not only his ring but all the other presents he has given returned; and the law says he has a right to them whenever the law is asked to settle the question.

Dying of Famine

is, in its torments, like dying of consumption. The progress of consumption, from the beginning to the very end, is a long torture, both to victim and friends. "When I had consumption in its first stage," writes Wm. Myers, of Cearfoss, Md., "after trying different medicines and a good doctor, in vain, I at last took Dr. King's New Discovery, which quickly and perfectly cured me. Prompt relief and sure cure for coughs, colds, sore throat, bronchitis, etc. Positively prevents pneumonia. Guaranteed at Oberdorfer's drug store. Price 50c and $1 a bottle. Trial bottle free.

When a baby acts willful his mother is pretty apt to say: "Well, he would not amount to much if he did not have a will of his own."

THE WORK OF SPIRITS.

Ghostly Visitors Commaned Paralyzed Woman to Walk.

It was a good spirit clothed in spotless white that went to her and cured her of paralysis. Such was the allegation of Miss Louise Tahse, of Springfield, Mass., who had suffered from paralysis for six years. She said the spirit appeared and told her to take an icy plunge in the bathtub. She was then commanded to go through queer gestures and then go to bed and take a nap.

She was awakened by the same spirit and told to walk out on the veranda roof where she would find Jacob's ladder. This she was to ascend, accompanied by Christ. She awoke from the delusion, threw her crutches aside and walked down stairs unassisted.

DEATH PREFERABLE

And Denny Attempted Suicide Rather Than Remain in Jail.

At Richmond, Ky., when Jailer Buck Johnson went to call the prisoners for their breakfast Saturday morning, he found James Denny lying upon the cell floor, unconscious, in a pool of blood. He had attempted suicide during the night by stabbing himself twice in the region of the heart. It is believed he will die.

Denny is the man who killed Robert Gillen at Union City, some months ago and was last week given twenty-one years in the penitentiary.

Sheriff Broadus was to have taken Denny to Frankfort Saturday to turn him over to the penitentiary authorities and appeared at the jail door for his charge.

The man who tried to rob a bank at Topeka by tunneling through the foundation of the vault should learn that there is an easier way to get money, and with less possibility of being caught: Get elected to the office of State Treasurer.

BACCALAUREATE SERMON.

Singing by The Paris Choral Society Simply Grand.

Elder Carey E. Morgan preached a very impressive baccalaureate sermon to the graduates of the Paris High School at the Christian Church Sunday evening. A large audience was in attendance not only listened attentively to the sermon but to the delightful music. The sermon was brimming over with good and wholesome advice to the young graduates, and at the same time it was good for every person present. If it is but heeded and remembered by members of the class it will make each of them noble and Christian men and women through life.

The singing was in charge of the Paris Choral Society, under the directorship of Dr. Frank Fithian, and if it were possible for them to have excelled over the music at the Conclave devotional exercises they did it on this occasion. We do not believe this chorus can be equaled in Kentucky, or in fact, in many of the large cities of the country.

NOBLE GOES FREE

On Motion of Friends of Murdered Man—Sensational Step.

At Jackson, when the case of the Commonwealth vs. Jake Noble, etc., was called in the Circuit Court Judge Redwine and Attorney Adams, representing the State, filed a petition and motion for change of venue, stating that such a condition of affairs existed in Breathitt as precluded a probability of the Commonwealth having a fair trial of the case in that county. The court, after hearing arguments, decided that the case should not be transferred.

Then followed the most sensational step that has been taken in any of these prosecutions. The Commonwealth and the friends of the dead man immediately moved that the case be dismissed and filed away. The court, of course, sustained the motion, and Noble walked out of the court house a free man. Mr. Holliday, the father of the man who was killed, says that under the conditions there it would have been impossible to convict the Nobles.

BOURBON CROPS.

Helped Considerably by Late Rains—Not All Saved [By Any Means.]

By talking to a number of prominent farmers yesterday we find that while the late rains helped the crops in Bourbon, yet they did not by any means save all of them.

The wheat and corn crops are greatly improved. Hemp is also doing well. It is also reported that a number of fields of late sown hemp are beginning to come up.

The grass seed crop will be a failure. The two months drought damaged this crop badly and while the rains might have helped it some, they were too late to make anything like a crop usually raised in Bourbon. Then, too, the acreage in this crop is short in Bourbon as there was a large acreage of new ground plowed up this season for hemp and tobacco.

The farmers say they will probably get in what was intended for tobacco, although the plants have been small and scarce.

TO HAVE HOME-COMING.

Commissioner J. T. Hinton Starts the Ball By Appointing Committees For Bourbon.

After our editorial page had been printed late yesterday afternoon, where will be found another editorial on Bourbon's Home-Coming, the following was handed in to us by Commissioner Hinton:

At the Home-Coming in Louisville on June 13-17 will be gathered among the ex-Kentuckians many ex-Parisians and ex-Bourbons, who will be delighted to visit their old home and friends. To this end, that we may have them with us once more to enjoy their presence, I, as Commissioner representing Bourbon county, appoint the Committees found below to make suitable arrangements for the proper entertainment and care of all whom we may be so fortunate to have with us on June 19th, as they will be invited to be here at that time.

I would suggest that these Committees immediately solicit subscriptions in money and edibles, and each person named on them report the progress made at a meeting to be held at the Court House, Saturday afternoon, June 9th, at 3 o'clock.

It is hoped every one outside of the committees will take a personal interest in this matter and endeavor to make this a most enjoyable occasion for our old friends and visitors.

Respectfully,

J. T. HINTON.

Paris Defeats Maysville.

In a decidedly one-sided game of ball Sunday afternoon Paris defeated the Maysville team by a score of 16 to 2. There were near 500 people present. The visitors fielded very well, but were weak at the bat. Their pitching department was also out of order, as the Paris sluggers found them easy marks.

On next Sunday afternoon Paris will line up against a strong proposition, the Blue Licks, of Covington, and this will no doubt be one of the very best games played here this season, as all know the visitors rank with the strongest teams in the State.

CHILDREN'S DAY

Exercises at Christian Church Made One Feel It Was Good to Be There.

As has been its custom for several years past, the Christian Sunday School, of this city, presented the exercises "Arise Shine" in celebration of children's day the first Sunday in June, in the interest of foreign missions. The exercises consisted of songs and drills, interspersed with recitations. The boys who rendered several recitations and a cane drill, displayed a determination not to be outdone by the girls, who always do their part so well.

Nothing could have been sweeter than the motion songs given by the sixty members of the primary class, yet each succeeding number of the program added varied beauty until it would seem impossible to say which might claim first rank. The sweetness and pathos of the songs rendered by the little girls, the picturesque beauty of the drills and marches by the young ladies, the strong, appealing recitations by both boys and girls, all had their share in making this an ideal missionary service. Showing that the whole school is deeply interested in the work of salvation and the sending of the gospel to foreign lands. The contributions amounted to about $150.

The occasion was certainly a success and this was largely due to the excellent management of Mrs. Lizzie Walker, who had the training of the children in charge, assisted in the drills by Miss Vansarsdale, aided through it all by the teachers, who have instilled in to the members of the various classes an untiring interest in such work. It was a beautiful sight and a day of enjoyment and inspiration.

Through the whole program the sunshine and happiness sparkled from beginning to end through it all could be seen that the noblest work of man to make the world better and brighter.

Mr. W. O. Hinton, who has been Superintendent of this large and interesting school for the past five years, was in his happiest mood, looked as if he was prouder of his little folks than ever before on other similar occasions.

CLARK-UPINGTON.

Wedding a Quiet Affair, Yet Beautiful in Every Detail.

The marriage of Mr. Wm. Logan Clarke, of this city, to Miss Mable Upington, of Lexington, was solemnized Saturday afternoon, at 4 o'clock, at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. James T. Upington, in Lexington, the Rev. U. G. Foote officiating. The wedding was quiet on account of bereavement in the bride's family and only the members of the two families and a few intimate friends were present, yet at the same time it was a most beautiful affair.

The home was beautifully decorated with palms, ferns, drapings of smilax and quantity of flowers. In the drawing room, the scene of the ceremony, a graceful altar of plants stood before the mantle in front of which a pretty picture was formed for the guests as the bridal party stood to plight their troth.

Miss Carrie Kidd played the wedding music—Lohengrin's Bridal Chorus for the entrance of the wedding party and soft strains from "Melody of Love" during the ceremony. The bridegroom with his best man, Mr. Catesby Woodford Spears, of this city, entered first, followed by the lovely bride and her sister, Miss Dixie Lee Upington, the maid of honor. They came from the hall into the drawing-room and before the altar the young couple joined. The bride is one of Lexington's most attractive girls and was never more beautiful than in her exquisite bridal gown of white French lawn elaborately trimmed with lace. In her hand was a single rose bud and she carried a huge bouquet of bride's roses tied with tulle. The maid of honor was a charming figure in a gown of white French lawn and lace, and she also carried a bouquet of white roses tied with tulle. After the final blessings, Mendelssohn's Wedding March sounded and congratulations were showered upon the happy couple. Late in the afternoon they left for Cincinnati and from there will go to New York, Washington and other points East on their wedding trip.

They will be absent about two weeks and will then return to Paris to make their home with Mr. Clarke's parents.

The popular couple were remembered with many handsome gifts. The bride has always been a favorite in her home city and a lovely young girl. The groom is the son of Dr. and Mrs. C. J. Clarke, of this city. He is connected in the drug business with his father, and there never lived in Paris a young man with more friends than Wm. Logan Clarke.

A Few Pointers on Plumbing.

First, the way to get a good job of plumbing is to get good material; then to get it put in right you must get a good plumber. Health must be considered as we go along, you take an unsanitary job of plumbing it is the most injurious thing known to the health today. It takes experience to find these things out. To do a first class sanitary job in plumbing you must know how to do it, because water runs to a bath tub and from it is no sign that your job is sanitary. The man who is not a good judge of horses and has no love for them, but is a judge of cows and likes dairying, will be more likely to make money in dairying than in horse raising. But the man who has a natural fondness for horses and is a good judge of horse stock will derive much pleasure and profit in breeding good horse stock provided he starts right, keeps his salls fairly trimmed and sells when he gets fair offers so as to prevent his stock from a cumulating and becoming a burden.

Never drive cattle fast in hot weather. No animal suffers so much from being over-crowded as the dairy cow or the fat steer, both of which need to be gently driven when moved from barn to pasture.

Press dispatches announce that an agreement has been reached between the representatives of the two warring turf factions, the American Turf Association and the Western Jockey Club, by which all friction will end, with the possibility of the organization of a new association, practically combining the two clubs. The agreement is said to have been ratified by the American Turf Association and only details remain to be arranged.

A well-known buyer says horses are on the decrease in Montana and other Western States. This party bought and shipped 2,500 horses from that State last year. He says that the quality has been improved by the efforts to breed up made by the ranchers. It is now very difficult to buy a horse under $20, where fifteen years ago many could be had at $5.00 per head.

Mule colts of good size bone and muscle are commanding strong prices, future sales being made at from $80 to $125 per head. Buyers from the east and south are in the market and all colts showing good size and breeding are likely to be sold before weaning time. Recently Jas. W. White, of Mt. Sterling, Ky., bought near North Middletown, this county, mule colts as follows: Of John J. Redmon, one for $110; Chas. Clark, one for $112.50; J. W. Young, one for $100; Thos. McCray, one for $95; Young Bros., one for $90; Wm. Bedford, one for $90. R. N. Ratliff bought one for $125.

D. G. Darlander and Wm. Reed, of Cornishville, Mercer county, Ky., each sold a mule colt recently at $100 each. Other offers of $80 to $90 have been refused for colts in that section.

TEXAS WOMAN DEFENDED.

Artist Has Refuted Scathing Charge Made by Minister.

"In all the states of this country I have not noticed such ugly, bad looking, hard women and ladies as those in Texas," said the Rev. B. M. Skulik, D. D., of La Salle, Ill. He stated that because the women of Texas are allowed so much liberty there is more immorality, shamelessness, drunkenness and vice, than in any other state. Freeman Thorp, a prominent artist, of Washington, D. C., who has been traveling through Texas, made the following answer to the Rev. Mr. Skulik's statement:

"The comparative degree of physical beauty of the women of Texas is not a matter of public consequence, and has no important bearing either upon the character of its people or upon the thoughts of moral teaching that should occupy the mind of the eminent divine. I certainly have been unable to discover any characteristic lack of beauty in the women of Texas, and I have little consideration for the man who can discover nothing more admirable in any woman than her physical beauty. I found the women of Texas refined cultured, home-loving wives, mothers, daughters and sisters, who strive to make their homes attractive to their husbands, sons, fathers and brothers."

Do You Want to Know

What You Swallow?

There is a growing sentiment in this country in favor of MEDICINES OF KNOWN COMPOSITION. It is but natural that one should have some interest in the composition of that which he or she is expected to swallow, whether it be food, drink or medicine.

Recognizing this growing disposition on the part of the public, and satisfied that the fullest publicity can only add to the well-earned reputation of his medicines, Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., has "taken time by the forelock," as it were, and is publishing broadcast a list of all the ingredients entering into his leading medicines, the "Golden Medical Discovery," the popular liver invigorator, stomach tonic, blood purifier and heart regulator; also of his "Favorite Prescription" for weak, over-worked, broken-down, nervous and invalid women.

This bold and outspoken movement on the part of Dr. Pierce, has, by showing exactly what his well-known medicines are composed of, completely disarmed all harping critics who have heretofore unjustly attacked them. A little pamphlet has been compiled, from the standard medical authorities of all the several schools of practice, showing the strongest endorsements by leading medical writers of the several ingredients which enter into Dr. Pierce's medicines. A copy of this little book is mailed free to any one desiring to learn more concerning the valuable, native, medicinal plants which enter into the composition of Dr. Pierce's medicines. Address Dr. Pierce as above.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets are tiny, sugar-coated anti-bilious granules. They regulate and invigorate Stomach, Liver and Bowels. Do not breed the pill habit, but cure constipation. One or two each day for a laxative and regulator, three or four for an active cathartic. Once tried always in favor.

CLEVER LITTLE STORIES.

A countryman was being entertained at a foreign restaurant by a London acquaintance, the dinner consisting chiefly of rich and fanciful dishes. "Well," said the Londoner, handing his friend the menu, "what will you have next?"

"Ah," replied the provincial, thoughtfully, "Aa think Aa'll hev indigestion next!"

"Your honor," observed Mr. Bailey, "my unfortunate client—" "There the court is with you," gently interrupted the judge, with a grim smile. And the future Senator from Texas lost his case.

A New York teacher of instrumental music was one day telling the father of her pupil, a lad of ten years, of the progress made by the boy in his studies. "I think he is improving a great deal," said the professor; "he will certainly learn to play the piano." "Is that so?" asked the father, much gratified; "I didn't know whether he was really improving, or whether I was merely getting use to it."

Lloyd George was addressing a meeting in Wales, and his chairman said: "I haff to introduce you to members of the Carnaron Boroughs. He hass come here to reply to what the Bishop of St. Asaph said the other night about Welsh Disestablishment. In my opinion, gentlemen, the Bishop of St. Asaph is one of the biggest liars in creashon; but he hass his match in Lloyd George!"

The new cook was helping her mistress to prepare dinner. All went well until the macaroni for the pudding was brought out. The cook glowed with surprise as she beheld the long white sticks. But when they were carefully placed in water she gave a choking gasp. "Did you say, missus?" she said, in an awed voice, "that you are goin' to make puddin' out of that?" "Yes, Jane," was the reply, "that is what I intend to do. Have you never seen macaroni cooked before?" "No, ma'am," answered the cook, "I ain't. The last place I was at we always used them things to light the gas with."

Chucked His Job.

At San Francisco immediately after the earthquake when hundreds and thousands of people were looking for something to do, especially those with families to support, a printer nobly gave his job to a married man who relates the incident as follows:

"Chucked my job," was his answer to my question. "Do you think I'd hang on to it while hundreds of married men are hunting for work?" At an Oakland restaurant a similar case occurred. A man applied for work, and when the proprietor refused he said: "I must have it, for I have a wife and children to support." Unwillingly enough, the proprietor repeated that he could not employ any more men, whereupon a waiter who was passing set down his tray of dishes, whipped off his apron and handed it to the applicant. "I have nobody but myself to look after," he said; "take my job."

YEARS OF THE EARTH

THIS WORLD OF OURS COUNTS THEM BY THE MILLIONS.

Various Calculations by Which the Famous Scientists Have Endeavored to Figure Out the Age of the Planet Upon Which We Live.

The time has admittedly gone by for attempting to "reconcile the facts of nature," to use a recognized phrase, with the chronology of the Bible, which makes the age of the world rather less than 6,000 years.

Indeed, in the Egyptian rooms at the British museum the visitor can see for himself objects which go back to an authenticated period long antecedent to 4000 years B. C., and great is the wonder produced on the minds of those who first make their acquaintance.

In that same department, among the mummies, there is what is in many respects the most striking of the exhibits in the department—the body of a man who belongs to the stone age. It lies in an accurate representation of the peculiarly shaped grave in which it was found, and it has been in consequence somewhat irreverently nicknamed by the habitués of the museum "the man in the pie dish."

The particular interest in that corpse, which men, women and even children look upon without the least thought or suggestion of the fear or horror usually inseparable from death, is that it is unquestionably the oldest exhibit in the museum, and scientists have been rather struck by the fact that the authorities of the great institution in Great Russell street have not, so to say, taken the bull by the horns, boldly labeled that exhibit as dating from 50,000 B. C. Thus with one single stroke of the pen Bishop Usher's Biblical chronology is multiplied by about nine, and it may be that an even higher number would be required to satisfy the requirements of the age of that particular specimen.

How long has the earth been a planet capable of supporting not only human, but all forms of life?

In an address Lord Kelvin once delivered on the subject he gathered together the opinions of various scientific men which cannot but be of interest to every thinking being. Darwin, in his "Origin of Species," stated that, "in all probability a far longer period than 300,000,000 years has elapsed," while later on, in the same book, he wrote: "He who can read Sir Charles Lyell's grand work on the 'Principles of Geology,' which the future historian will recognize as having produced a revolution in natural science, yet does not admit how incomprehensibly vast have been the last periods of time, may at once close this volume."

Lord Kelvin himself—then Professor William Thomson—later made an attempt to calculate the length of time during which the sun has been burning at its present rate, and in that connection he wrote: "It seems on the whole most probable that the sun has not illuminated the earth for 100,000,000 years and almost certain that it has not done so for 500,000,000 years. As for the future we may say with equal certainty that the inhabitants of the earth cannot continue to enjoy the light and heat essential to their life for many million years longer unless new sources, now unknown to us, are prepared in the great storehouse of creation."

It is a remarkable evidence of the acute perception of Lord Kelvin's mind, as of the rare prevision of his intellect, that the last words—"unless new sources, now unknown to us, are prepared in the great storehouse of creation"—should have been added to that remarkable sentence.

As an example of the very extraordinary range of time given to the age of the earth, consider the following statement from Professor Jukes' "Students' Manual of Geology." He wrote: "Mr. Darwin estimates the time required for the denudation of the rocks of the weald of Kent, or the erosion of space between the ranges of chalk hills known as the north and south downs, at 300,000,000 years. It may be possible, perhaps, that the estimate is a hundred times too great, and that the real time elapsed did not exceed 3,000,000 years; but, on the other hand, it is just as likely that the time which actually elapsed since the first commencement of the erosion till it was nearly as complete as it now is was really a hundred times greater than his estimate, or 300,000,000 years."

Professor Phillips in a lecture at the University of Cambridge considered the rate of erosion between the ranges of the north and south downs to be rather one inch a year than Darwin's estimate of one inch in a hundred years, so that on mere geological grounds he reduced the time to about a hundredth. Calculating, however, the actual thickness of all the known geological strata of the earth he came to the conclusion that life on the earth's surface may probably date back to between 38,000,000 and 96,000,000 years.

Professor Sollas of Oxford, working on new principles applied to the stratified rocks, reduced this time very considerably, for he wrote, "So far as I can at present see, the lapse of time since the beginning of the Cambrian system is probably less than 17,000,000 years, even when computed on an assumption of uniformity, which to me seems contradicted by the most salient facts of geology."

What are the data, it will naturally be asked, on which calculations of this magnitude are made? Among the most important are the consideration of the underground heat which is constantly being conducted out of the earth—in other words, the cooling of the earth—the speed at which the earth rotates on its axis as well as physical properties of rocks at high temperatures.

The loss of heat by conduction was Lord Kelvin's first argument for limiting the age of the earth. He found that if the earth had been losing heat in the past "with approach to uniformity for 20,000,000 years the amount of heat lost out of the earth would have been about as much as would heat by 100 degrees centigrade a quantity of ordinary surface rock of 100 times the earth's bulk. This would be more than enough to melt a mass of surface rock equal in bulk to the whole earth. No hypothesis as to chemical action, internal fluidity effects of pressure at great depths or possible character of substances in the interior of the earth, possessing the smallest vestige of probability, can justify the supposition that the earth's upper crust has remained nearly as it is, while from the whole or from any part of the earth so great a quantity of heat has been lost."

By considering the cooling of the earth and by tracing backward the process of cooling Lord Kelvin came to "a definite estimate of the greatest and least number of million years which can possibly have passed since the surface of the earth was everywhere red hot." This estimate he expressed in the following words:

"We are very ignorant as to the effects of high temperatures in altering the conductivities and specific heats and melting temperatures of rocks and as to their latent heat of fusion. We must therefore allow very wide limits in such an estimate as I have attempted to make, but I think we may with much probability say that the consolidation cannot have taken place less than 20,000,000 years ago, or more than 40,000,000 years ago, or we should now have more underground heat than we actually have."—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Unfortunate Inventors.

"Trevelthick," said an inventor in a bitter tone, "invented the first steam locomotive. He exhibited it in London on a circular track. It ran fifteen miles an hour. Trevelthick, though, made nothing out of his invention. People laughed at it. They'd have none of it. All Trevelthick accomplished in his life was to pave the way for Stephenson's success. He died in poverty, poor fellow."

"Koenig invented the steam printing press. His partner, Bensley, cheated him. Koenig, to support life, had to sell his patents. He died a poor man, working for about $8 a week."

"Whitney, the inventor of the cotton gin, didn't make a cent out of his idea. Howe, the inventor of the sewing machine, sold his patent rights for a passage to England. He was a mill hand when his machine was putting millions in the pockets of other men."

"Jacquard, the inventor of the famous loom, might have become a billionaire. This unselfish Frenchman, though, gave his invention to the government, and all he got in return—all he asked in return—was a pension of $1,000 a year."

Human Life the Music of the Gods.

Somewhere it is said that human life is the music of the gods—that its sobs and laughter, its songs and shrieks and orisons, its outcries of delight and of despair, rise never to the hearing of the immortals but as a perfect harmony. Wherefore they could not desire to hush the tones of pain. It would spoil their music! The combination, without the agony tones, would prove a discord unendurable to ears divine. And in one way we are like unto the gods, since it is only the sum of the pains and the joys of past lives innumerable that makes for us, through memory organic, the ecstasy of music. All the gladness and the grief of dead generations come back to haunt us in countless forms of harmony and melody. Even so—a million years after we shall have ceased to view the sun—will the gladness and the grief of our own lives pass with richer music into other hearts, there to barter, for one mysterious moment, some deep and exquisite thrilling of voluptuous pain.—Lafcadio Hearn.

Despotism of Jewels.

Cocquetry and the fashion of unstable forms cannot explain the despotic attraction that precious stones exercise over our senses. Their fascinating power has never ceased. They subjugate and enslave even the most austere, and man esteems as priceless the charm of their yoke. Art strives to discover original reductions, to create virgin enthusiasms, to enrich with new tremors the subtle gamut of our sensations, but without being able to detach us from these necklaces, bracelets and jewels.—Peris Eclair.

A QUEER POKER GAME

IT WAS PLAYED BY TWO STOCKMEN IN A DENVER HOTEL.

The Turn That Came When the Fortunes of Both Men Were Piled on the Table—A Side Bet and a Card That Was Not Shown to the Board.

The old St. James hotel in Denver was one of the landmarks of the city for over a quarter of a century, and many famous sporting men were among its guests. Numerous stories are told of the "stiff" poker games that used to be played there in the late eighties and early nineties of the last century.

A game was played one night between two stockmen, a banker and a mining man. The story goes that the mining man and the banker played until they were "all in," leaving the two stockmen to battle it out. It came up to the "consolation" jack pot, and those who had lingered to see the finish were not disappointed when they expected something spectacular to take place. The stakes were running high, the ante being $500, with no betting limit. One of the stockmen opened for $2,500 and was promptly raised before the draw. Then there followed a series of raises and counter raises until the pot contained $11,600 before cards were drawn.

"Give me that one," blandly announced the man who had "seen" the last raise. The dealer slipped one card across the table, laid the deck down, relighted his neglected cigar and said unconcernedly, "I'll play these."

Then the betting commenced in earnest. The player had opened, and he led off with $2,500 as a "feeler." The dealer raised a like amount, and the other fellow followed suit. It was plain that one or the other of the men was going to lose his fortune. Checks were written, torn up and made out for larger amounts, and finally mortgage papers on real estate and cattle were passed into the pot. Finally one man said to the other:

"Say, Henry, I'm going to stay with you until everything I've got, right down to the clothes on my back, is represented on the table. Now, I'm in doubt as to some of my property holdings, so I'll make you a proposition. Give me until tonight (it was then 4 a. m.) to find out just where I stand and we'll play the hand out. Meantime let us seal up my hand in one envelope, yours in another and the deadwood in still another. We'll leave the three envelopes in the office safe, to be delivered to both of us together."

The other player agreed, and envelopes and sealing wax were sent for. The hands and remaining cards in the deck were duly sealed and deposited as per arrangement.

Meantime friends of the two players endeavored to get the men together on some sort of compromise proposition, knowing full well that neither could afford to bank his entire fortune on a poker hand, leaving his family destitute, but both men were obdurate and would listen to no proposition to split the pot. An interested and expectant group gathered in the lobby about 8 o'clock in the evening, among them being the man who had opened the pot. They talked together in a friendly manner, speculating upon what would happen when the man who went to look up his assets returned. While they were talking he walked in.

"Well, Henry, I'm ready to resume our little argument," he announced in a matter of fact tone. Then the crowd repaired to the room where the game had been played. The man announced that he had $33,000 to "play back." Securities and certified checks representing this amount were piled on the table. Then, and not until then, did either of the men show signs of nervousness. The opener had drawn a check for $33,000 and started to tear it out of the book when the other man said in a slow, deliberate voice:

"Looks a little strong for either of us, doesn't it, Henry?"

"Well," rejoined the other man, toying with the check, "what would you consider a fair proposition at this stage of the game?"

"It's not gambling, I know," said the other, "but if you want to split the pot and"—

"She's split," calmly announced the man who had opened for $2,500. The currency, gold, checks, mortgage papers and securities were equally divided. Not a word was spoken. Silently the man who opened took up the envelopes, tore them open and laid the two hands on the table, faces downward.

"Bet you a cigar I had you beat," he bantered.

"You're called," said the other, turning over four cards, jacks and sixes. The opener also turned over four cards. They were jacks and sixes.

"I'll bet you," said the dealer, "a thousand dollars that I've still got you beat."

The other man peeped at a corner of his buried card, toyed a moment with a stack of currency and shoved $1,000 to the center. Then, without waiting for the man he had called to show his hole card, he turned up a four spot. The dealer looked at it, smiled, touched ed the bell and put his hand in the deck. He never told what the other card was.—Denver Times.

Lights of London.

A farmer who visited London for the first time was walking along Oxford street, filling his pipe, when a match-boy came up to him with the usual "Lights, sir?" The farmer took a box from the boy, extracted a match, lit his pipe and handed the box back to the astonished lad, passing on with the remark, "Lor, what a wunnerful place Lunngh is, to be sure!"

Triboulet, the Jester.

Here is a story of Triboulet, the jester of Francis I. and probably the most famous in history: "A great nobleman who had suffered from Triboulet's gibes threatened to have him flogged. The jester complained to the king. 'Have no fear,' Francis said, 'for if any one were bold enough to kill you I should have him hanged in an hour afterward.' 'Oh, sire,' replied Triboulet, 'would it not please your majesty to have him hanged an hour before?' Triboulet happened to be present at a meeting of the council at which there was a discussion as to the road by which the French army should invade Italy. 'Gentlemen,' interrupted the jester, 'you appear to consider yourselves very wise, but you are strangely mistaken, for you have forgotten the most essential point.' 'And what is the most essential point?' queried a grave counselor. 'It is simple enough,' answered Triboulet. 'You have deliberated at great length as to the road by which you shall enter Italy, but you have never thought of the one you will take when you have to leave it again.'"

IN THE SHADOW OF DEATH.

The Approach of the Black Rider Does Not Incite Fear.

As Sir Walter Scott lay dying he summoned his great friend to his side by a motion of his hand and whispered: "Lockhart, I may have but a minute to speak to you. My dear, be a good man. Be virtuous, be religious—be a good man. Nothing else will give you any comfort when you come to lie here."

Nelson in the midst of his gratefulness for having died victoriously for England thought for a flashing moment of his early record in its relation to the life after death. "Doctor," he said to the surgeon, "I have not been a great sinner."

On the other hand, there are innumerable instances in the records of biography pointing to the fact that men die without a thought of the world beyond. Charles II. died thinking of "Poor Nell." Sir Richard Grenville died with his mouth full of oaths, cursing the "traitors and dogs" who had surrendered his little Revenge to the Spaniards. History is full of such instances.

"Indeed, it is a memorable subject for consideration," says Stevenson, "with what unconcern and gayety mankind runs on along the valley of the shadow of death. The whole way is one wilderness of snares, and the end of it for those who fear the last pinch is irrevocable ruin. And yet we go spinning through it all, like a party for the Derby."

A doctor tells me that in a very long hospital experience he has never known of a sensational deathbed. The approach of death is, as a rule, doubted, and up to the last moment of consciousness the passing soul retains its conviction in the endurance of earthly things.

Soldiers tell the same story. To die jesting seems the last act of courage possible to a fighting man, and he makes the most of it. Endless are the stories of soldiers dying in action with a shout of humor on their lips.

Even more wonderful is the cold bloodedness of men going to the scaffold. To feel the edge of the ax was something of a jest in old days, and there is the story of the felon going to Tyburn who blew the froth from his last mug of beer because it always gave him indigestion!

And yet it is only in brief moments that the true horror of death sweeps over the soul. We do not think about it. We put it away from us. Humanity has made up its mind not to be frightened. Death indeed is even preferred before life. A hopeless infatuation for a painted doll will drive Fortunatus to suicide. Money troubles will fling a man under a passing express, and dyspepsia has loaded many a revolver. Life may be unendurable, but death is not to be feared. Into the unthinkable mysteries of the universe a soul casts itself in a petulance and the waters of death close over it without a sound.

What has become of that soul? Where is that consciousness gone—that personality, that individual force which differed the man from every other who ever lived?

But the mob who watch the poor drenched and bloated and horrible body wheeled away to the mortuary turn away without any realization of death. They go to their taverns and their merchandise, take up the old greasy and well worn threads of their existence, and getting of food monopolizes all their thoughts.

Fear death? They fear nothing in the world. They are not even afraid of themselves.—Chicago Inter Ocean.
